WOMAN HELD FOR SHOOTING SALESMAN

COLUMBUS, O., October 29.—Miss Mary Hagan, 26, will be arraigned in police court here today on a charge of shooting Ernest B. King, 34, of Charleston, W. Va., a stock salesman, with intent to kill. King was shot by the woman, a former sweetheart, as he emerged from a fashionable downtown hotel last night, where he and his bride, formerly Miss Nan Grabbill, of Charleston, were spending a few days of their honeymoon. They were married Monday.

Miss Hagan fired two shots at close range from a 22 calibre revolver, both of which took effect, one in the arm and the other in King's neck. After they were removed King returned to his hotel.

Miss Hagan, whose mother resides in Columbus, told police she had been intimate with King in Charleston for two years.

She pleaded not guilty when arraigned in police court today on a charge of shooting to kill. The case was continued until next Saturday.

STRIKING MEN WOULD FORFEIT BENEFITS UNDER TRANSPORTATION ACT

CHICAGO, October 29.—(By the Associated Press)—The United States railroad labor board today, in effect forbade railroad union labor from striking without the board's permission and declared that all strikers who violated the order would be classed as "outlaws" who had voluntarily removed themselves from the protection of the transportation act.

CHICAGO, October 29.—(By the Associated Press)—The railroad labor board today issued its decision on the hearing to determine responsibility for the general strike threatened by the big five railroad unions, making three findings, the third of which held that any union going out on strike will forfeit its right and the rights of its members in all existing contracts and lose all benefits accorded by the transportation act.

"That all such disputes must be referred to the board before any action is taken.

"That any interruption of traffic would be a blow aimed at the peace, prosperity and safety of the entire nation."

Provincial Seminary In Cincinnati

CLEVELAND, O., October 29.—Announcement that a new provincial seminary to educate students for priesthood from the eleven dioceses of the Catholic province of Cincinnati, would be built in Cincinnati was made today by Bishop Joseph Schrembs. Ground has been broken for the new building and it is expected it will be ready in a year.

Only students of theology will be sent to the provincial seminary. Preparatory studies up to the study of the dogmas where a bishop resides. In Cleveland a new preparatory seminary, it was stated, would replace the present St. Mary's seminary, an institution 70 years old.

Bishop Schrembs also stated that he had directed priests of the diocese to observe the law regarding church music, that only men be members of the choir and compositions in conformity with the religious service shall be sung. The bishop has directed that this regulation be complied with by November 1, 1922.

Harding Entertains Marshal Foch

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 29.—President Harding acting for the American people today formally welcomed Marshal Foch to the United States.

The leader of the allied armies in the final and victorious phase of the struggle against the forces of the Central powers, began a busy day in the nation's capital with a call at the White House to pay his respects to President Harding and to receive from the president a formal welcome.

Accompanied by a squadron of cavalry and accompanied by Ambassador Jusserand, the marshal arrived at the White House at ten o'clock. Crowds gathered along the driveway through the White House grounds gave him a vociferous greeting.

The president attended by his military and naval aides received the marshal in the blue room.

The president and Marshal Foch conversed with each other for some time. Ambassador Jusserand acting as interpreter. The president tendered to the marshal a warm welcome of behalf of the American people and told the military leader that France occupied a large place in the hearts of the people of the United States.

Leaving the White House, Marshal Foch called on Vice President Coolidge who greeted the distinguished visitor as "the man who saved both France and America."

The vice president received the marshal, his aides and party in the vice president's room off the senate chamber.

Marshal Foch returned Mr. Coolidge's greeting with praise for the American army and its services in the war.

He then called on Secretary of State Hughes. After a few minutes in Secretary Hughes' office, the French soldier emerged and went to General Pershing's office where he paid his formal call upon the American soldier and former comrade in arms with the French leader. General Pershing occupying the dual roles of general of the armies and chief of staff. The general also was acting secretary of war until the unexpected return of Assistant Secretary Walbridge, who made it possible for the distinguished visitor to pay his respects to the civilian head of the war department after his call on General Pershing.

The marshal on calling at the home of the former President Wilson, was informed through Brigadier General W. D. Connor, who is acting as honorary military aide, that Mr. Wilson was not receiving visitors. Inquiry later developed that the former president had suffered a slight digestive upset.

Prior to going to the Wilson home the marshal concluded his round of calls on cabinet members with a visit to the navy department where he was received by Secretary Denby, Assistant Secretary Roosevelt, Admiral Conz, chief of naval operations and other high naval officers.

The marshal returned to the White

POLICE GUARD COURT HOUSE

DEDHAM, MASS., October 29.—A motion for a new trial for Nicoll Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti convicted for murder in first degree in April, 1921, was heard in the Norfolk county superior court today.

Police guards, mounted on horses, on motorcycles and afoot, were thrown about the court house in numbers and inside the building a heavy guard was on duty. Deputy sheriffs and local police guarded the entrances to search all spectators for weapons. Riot guns were held in reserve.

The case which has been the subject of bomb, speaking and marching demonstrations by radicals in the capitals of Europe and South America, came again before Judge Webster Thayer, who presided over the jury trial in which the defendants were found guilty, sentence of the men has not been imposed, pending determination of today's motion for a retrial, and pending action also on exceptions to rulings and evidence which counsel for the defense have been given until December 1 to prepare.

Marquis A. Ferrante, Italian consul at Boston, accompanied by Vice Consul Silvio Vitale, appeared as spectators shortly before the opening of the hearing. Mr. Ferrante said he would make no statement.

Evelyn Nesbit Recovers From Morphine

NEW YORK, October 29.—Evelyn Nesbit was reported today as almost wholly recovered from the effects of an overdose of morphine, swallowed yesterday when a city marshal came to move furniture from her tea room and apartment in West 52nd street. The former wife of Harry K. Thaw, who later married and was divorced from Jack Clifford, a dancer, became hysterical when her efforts to obtain funds to pay her overdue rent, failed, and swallowed three grains of the drug. She called down to the marshal, informing him of what she had done, and collapsed on the floor. The marshal's speed in summoning a physician is said to have saved her life.

CONVENTION OF LEGION MEN OPENS MONDAY

KANSAS CITY, MO., October 29.—An army of former service men began to descend upon Kansas City today for the annual convention of the American Legion which opens next Monday.

Foremost foreign military leaders of modern times are among those en route here to be guests of the Legion, including Marshal Foch, of France, commander in chief of the allied armies, Lieutenant General Baron Jacques, of Belgium, General Armando Diaz of Italy, and Admiral Earl Beatty, of Great Britain. Marshal Foch is expected Monday, accompanied by General John J. Pershing, commander of the American army in France. Vice President Calvin Coolidge, representing President Harding, will head the American delegation of notables at the convention.

Today's work dealt mainly with arrangements for the parade Tuesday, which officials said would be more than seven miles long and include 40,000 or more marchers.

A force of Legionnaires as large as the city's police force will be on special duty as military police, during the convention and their activities will be confined to the Legionnaires.

UNION CHIEFS TO EXPLAIN POSITION TO WORKERS

CLEVELAND, O., October 29.—The "big five" railroad brotherhood chiefs returned from Chicago this morning and held a conference at which they agreed upon a joint letter to be mailed to their entire membership, setting forth the position of the chiefs in calling off the proposed railroad strike.

The letter will be mailed next week, together with the resolution adopted by the final conference of the labor leaders in Chicago Thursday night when the strike was called off. None of the brotherhood chiefs had any comment to make on the general situation today.

New Clinics For Ohio

COLUMBUS, O., October 29.—State health officials expect to uncover at least 1,000 cases of incipient tuberculosis as a result of the forty clinics now being held throughout the state.

Out of 81 persons, presenting themselves to the clinic at Circleville this week, about 81 per cent were found to be infected.

These incipient cases taken for immediate treatment are expected to be cured.

Next week's clinic will be held in Medina county and the following in Highland county.

"BLEATING BLANTON" HAS HIS HATES; FIRST IS ORGANIZED LABOR

BY HARRY HUNT
WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Thomas Lindsay Blanton, whose expulsion from Congress is demanded by Republican Leader Mondell on the ground of having inserted indecent and obscene language into the Congressional Record under a "leave to print," lives up to all Texas traditions as a scrapper.

Blanton was not expelled, but publicly reprimanded in house.

Blanton is never happy unless in a fight. If there isn't a fight handy which he can get into, he makes one.

He rushes in where others fear to tread, and because of his sledgehammer attack, his resourcefulness and his knowledge of parliamentary law, he quite often accomplishes his end.

That end, however, is, most often trying to defeat some measure or move.

CONGRESSMAN BLANTON
American Federation of Labor.
Living in a district absolutely devoid of organized workers, Blanton's labor baiting has enabled him to rot up tremendous majorities.

Even in the face of a blacklist by organized labor, his majority at the last election was greater than the total vote of his opponent.

Attack On Labor
His present difficulty was an outgrowth of his hatred for labor and an effort by him to champion the cause of non-union men at the government printing office.

The language to which Mondell objected was used by Blanton in quotations as having been the utterance of union leaders concerning non-unionists, and was designed by him to reflect upon the union.

Blanton will not be ousted; to do that would strengthen him with his constituents, it is feared, for the race for the Senate in which he has declared himself.

Blanton realizes that he overstepped himself for once, and on his return to Washington sat for an hour and a half in the House chamber without once addressing the chair, which, all agree, is a record in silence for Blanton.

Blanton is 49. He is a stocky, smooth-shaven, big-bellied chap with a wife and five children, and comes from the old Jimmie district in Texas, containing 29 counties and 530 miles long.

Independent Leads In North Dakota

FRAGO, N. D., Oct. 29.—L. A. Nestos, independent, was leading Governor Lynn J. Frazier, non-partisan, by nearly 2,000 in returns from 1,753 of the state's 2,084 precincts, unofficially tabulated at midday by independent newspapers from yesterday's recall election aimed at Governor Frazier and two other state officers endorsed by the non-partisan league. While the independents claimed victory for their candidates by majorities averaging 10,000, the non-partisan state headquarters here insisted that further returns from the Missouri slope county admittedly league territory, would be necessary before the outcome could be known definitely.

Although it was admitted unofficially that only a marked increase in league majorities in the unreported slope precincts could stop the rising tide of independent ballots.

Normal majorities of the league in the missing precincts, based on the returns of the general election a year ago, would not save its candidates from defeat, the independents said.

The standing of the gubernatorial contest at noon was Nestos 88,170, Frazier 63,497.

Centre Plays Harvard

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 28.—The Centre college, played "Bo" McMillen and the other "praying college" whose gridiron exploits have made famous the little Kentucky college they represent, were seen again in the stadium today, lined up to battle with the Harvard University. A closer game than the 31 to 14 contest won by Harvard last year was forecast.

Centre which found then that its brilliant back field could not operate at its best without improved line play, came north this time with a strengthened front rank. It was a much improved team, coaches and players said. The Harvard eleven was not the best that the crimson will show this year, injuries or dispositions with a view to the big game, that he ahead, having caused the crimson coaches to play second string men in a number of positions.

Lecture At Temple Sunday Evening

Local Bible students have arranged for a public lecture at the Temple Theatre Sunday evening at 7:30. The subject discussed will be "Millions Now Living Will Never Die". The speaker will be J. L. Dille, who was formerly a Methodist clergyman.

Mr. Dille will speak in the court house at Greenup at 2:30 p. m. and will come immediately from there to Portsmouth. Not only is his subject of interest, but Mr. Dille is a very capable and convincing speaker, and those who hear him Sunday evening are sure to come away well pleased. The lecture will be free and no collection will be lifted.

To Swoop Down On Cannonville

Probably more Portsmouth people will be in fronton tomorrow than in any time during its history. Every loyal football fan will be there to root for the Smokehouse eleven. Get aboard the special and you will be home by 6 o'clock, just in time to enjoy your supper.

Dr. F. H. Williams returned Friday night from Cincinnati, where he consulted specialists in regard to his health.

D. A. R. NOTES

Lots of people are at a loss to know who and when Joseph Spencer, in honor of whom the local chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution was named, lived and moved. A brief genealogy is not far to find. He was born in East Haddam, Connecticut, in 1714, and died in 1789. He was a colonial soldier and served in the French and Indian war with distinction, and was one of eight brigadiers appointed by Congress June 22, 1775. He served at Boston and New York, became major-general in August, 1776, and commanded in Rhode Island in 1777. He served in Congress in 1779. He was a New Englander of many accomplishments and served with capacity and bravery in whatever position the call of duty placed him. Distant relatives of the general were living in Scioto county in an earlier day.

RIVER NOTES

The Ohio river registered a pool stage of 13.2 feet in the Portsmouth district Saturday morning. The only boat movements Saturday was the Clif's Green which passed up for Huntington.

Nothing to Worry About.
"Are you not afraid that some of your children will fall into that open cistern?" asked the nervous boarder, looking over the picket fence in the back yard. "Oh, no, mum," came the placid reply. "Anyhow, it ain't where we get our drinkin' water."—Hampton's Magazine.

MANY THEORIES BUT FEW CLUES ARE DEVELOPED IN EFFORT TO SOLVE DOUBLE MURDER MYSTERY

Officials Re-Search Building In Vain To Find Gun; Think This Disposes of the Suicide Theory; New Facts Discovered

The seemingly impenetrable mystery, which surrounds the finding of the lifeless bodies of John W. Newman and Miss Louise Doyle in an unoccupied cottage along the Scioto Trail seven miles north of the city Friday afternoon remains unsolved.

Efforts of officials to unravel the apparently deep mystery have so far failed and the circumstances leading up to the double murder remain obscured.

Believing that the recovery of the gun used to snuff out the lives of the couple would be a big step toward solving the mystery, "Prosecuting Attorney George W. Sheppard, Coroner J. D. Hendrickson, Detective Fred Baker and a Times man visited the scene where the bodies were found and made a complete search this morning for the gun. All the rooms were thoroughly searched, sections of floors were torn up, sections of loose wallpaper were torn off, steps were taken up in fact nothing was left undone that would lead to the recovery of the death-dealing weapon. The search was carried to various sections around the cottage. The adjacent hillside and fields were searched, but no gun was found. Leaves were scraped up, logs overturned and stones were turned over as it was thought that possibly the gun user in his haste to get away had hidden the weapon near the abandoned cottage.

Convinced It Was Murder
Convinced that the man and woman were murdered and that Newman could not have shot himself, three times, Prosecuting Attorney Sheppard and Coroner Hendrickson will attempt to find out where the couple spent the time from when they abandoned their machine on the West Side until their dead bodies were found. There is a haze of many hours between these events, which officials say must be cleared up before a tangible clue can be obtained.

If Newman and Miss Doyle were victims of a suicide pact how did they cross the Scioto river and Scioto bottoms? Their shoes were almost spotlessly clean and singularly free of mud. No mud or dust could be found on the legs of Newman's trousers.

Did Without A Struggle
There was no mud or dust on Miss Doyle's clothes. She was dressed as if she were going to a party. When found her hair was not even disarranged, which is proof, the officials say that she died almost instantly and without the semblance of a struggle.

Why were there powder marks on her skirtwaist and undergarment and none on the jacket of her plaid suit? Why were there bullet holes through Newman's coat, vest and trousers, where he was shot through the side and none through his plaid overcoat? And when his lifeless body was found he had on his overcoat. Officials contend that if the suicide pact is to be given any credence the general appearance of the two victims would not have been so neat. They also say that the machine being found four miles from where the bodies were discovered leads them to the opinion that the murder was committed near or in the cottage and then to cast off suspicion the machine was driven to the West Side and abandoned.

No Bridge Near Scene
There is no bridge across the Scioto near the Tremper place and the couple could not have gotten across the river at that point unless they used a boat. If they had walked to the Lucasville bridge, their shoes would have been muddy or dusty and this was not the case.

Just how the couple reached the cottage or whether they drove to the West Side may never be known.

There can no longer be any doubt about Miss Doyle being in the Newman car on the night she left her home officials agreed today. They say they have indisputable evidence that she was seen to get in the Newman car in front of the Brady hall at Robinson avenue and Clay street. They say she was waiting there when Newman drove over from the Excelsior plant, where he had been working. They also contend that they know where Miss Doyle went to use a telephone to call up Newman. According to the officials, Miss Newman over the telephone said: "Is this you, John?"

Met On Brady's Corner
"Well, I'll meet you on Brady's corner at 15 minutes."

Shortly before this time Miss Doyle appeared on the above corner and a moment or two later Newman drove up in his machine and the couple turned west on Robinson avenue. That was the last seen of them until the finding of their dead bodies.

While Mrs. Newman says she never heard of her husband paying any attention to Miss Doyle, the officials say they were seen frequently to each other's company. It is said that on frequent occasions Newman accompanied Miss Doyle to within a square of her home.

When asked yesterday if he had ever seen his sister with Newman, Gun Doyle replied no. "I heard his name mentioned in our home several times, but did not pay any attention to it. I always figured Louise would take care of herself," the brother stated. He said she taught a Sunday school class, played the piano in church and was a home-loving girl. "I cannot believe that Louise had been keeping company with Newman."

Says Newman Acted Strangely
Mr. Doyle told a Times man that just yesterday a person called at their home and volunteered the information that Newman had been acting strangely for about six weeks.

"We thought all along that Louise would return home and attach no significance to reports to the contrary. We searched almost every day for her on the West Side, but found no trace of her or Newman. When we learned that her purse and picture had been found in the Newman car we were convinced that she had left the city with Newman."

Machine Abandoned Early
Coroner Hendrickson, Detective Baker and Prosecuting Attorney Sheppard after visiting the cottage on the Trail left for the Galeum pike on the West side. There it was that the Newman car was abandoned. "We found no trace of a struggle there and no blood spots or stains. We learned definitely that the machine was abandoned there as early as 10 o'clock on the night of Friday, October 21," the prosecutor said Saturday. "If there had been any shooting there the neighbors would have heard it and reported to the officials."

When asked if he thought Miss Doyle could have done the shooting, the prosecutor said this was mere gossip. "I cannot entertain this theory for a moment. Why it is ridiculous to think that Miss Doyle could have shot Newman three times and then send a bullet into her own heart. The deeper I get into the mystery the more convinced am I that it is a cold blooded double murder and to this end I shall bend all my energies. I consider it one of the most wanton murders committed in our county in many years. Every phase substantiates this belief and the guilty person or persons must be found."

Disposes of One Theory
"Well, I am satisfied there is no blood on the steps leading to the cottage where the bodies were found," Prosecuting Attorney Sheppard said this morning. "I examined the steps very minutely and did not find a single drop of blood on them."

Had there been any found we would have come to the conclusion that the bodies were carried into the cottage after being killed.

Where Did Gun Go?
Another theory that is to be investigated by the officials is that Newman after realizing that Miss Doyle would not accompany him on a long trip shot her and then took his own life. They do not place much credence in this theory from the fact that they insist that Newman could not have shot himself three times and then successfully concealed the gun.

There is no doubt in the minds of the relatives of the girl that she had intended being gone only a short time and fully expected to return to her home not later than 10 o'clock.

Say Couple Were Seen
Rumors were current today that a couple returning to the city on the night of Friday, October 21, passed Newman and Miss Doyle near Dry Run on the West Side. It is claimed that when the machines passed each other the young woman in the car coming to the city, exclaimed: "Why, there is Louise Doyle and Johnny Newman, wonder where they are going?"

The officials are looking into reports that Newman and Miss Doyle were frequently seen in the former's machine while on the Scioto Trail. It is reported that two weeks ago the Newman car had a puncture on the Trail and Miss Doyle held a light for him while he changed a tire. A woman telephoned this story to the Times today and said she was not making or gossiping but thought the public should know the truth. She refused to give her name and for this reason her story carries little, if any weight.

Truce And Not Settlement In Railroad Situation; Issues Must Be Decided

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
(Copyright, 1921, by Times Pub. Co.)
WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—The railroad strike may have been averted, but the issues which caused it to be threatened have by no means been settled. Most everybody in the Government realizes that a truce has been made and nothing more. Further wage cuts are up in the air, so are further freight reductions. The status quo will be maintained for at least nine months more.

Rail Board on Map
Meanwhile, certain points have been cleared up in the present controversy which will have the effect in the future of diminishing the area of dispute. President Harding, so to speak, put the United States Railroad Labor Board on the map. Its authority was challenged, its powers as a mediating body were questioned. But with the full support of the chief executive, the United States Railroad Board approaches its pending case knowing that it is responsible morally to the President for a thorough examination of all the issues and for a just verdict.

Public Opinion Swings Tide
Both the railroads and the labor unions now see the United States Railroad Board as a tribunal with real power. In an emergency, the President showed that he was ready to back up the board in its decisions. It was moreover to be used as an important lever in swinging public opinion. The labor leaders themselves now have admitted that with public opinion against them they could not hope to win the strike. They confessed the value of public opinion. This is a source of much gratification here for it means that the missing teeth in the

Transportation act have been found. Get At Root of Trouble
The way the United States Railroad Board, assisted by President Harding, functioned in the present crisis convinces officials that if in all labor disputes an effort were made to go at once to the root of the trouble without trying to settle imaginary issues that merely irritate and get nowhere, more progress would be made in solving labor quarrels.

Formula for Preventing War
Curiously enough the manner in which the railroad strike has been settled is exactly the formula that President Harding would like to see applied in preventing war. He believes that if public opinion can be marshaled against an offending nation, the people of the offending country will cause their government to recede from an aggressive stand. Woodrow Wilson belittled the League of Nations would always furnish such an intermediary. Mr. Harding thinks the group known as the Supreme Council can do the same thing.

Railroads Get Assurance
The theory back in Mr. Harding's mind in the railroad controversy was one of thorough and complete investigation of the merits of the dispute by the properly constituted agency. So long as the railroad brotherhoods insisted upon striking simply because of a request of the railroad executives for a wage cut, Mr. Harding was ready to use the full power of the government to explain to the American people the error of such an attitude. The railroad labor board did in effect guarantee the unions that no second wage cut would be considered before next July by announcing that the first in the next few months railroad earnings increased through a general take up the wage case. The railroads

Thinks It Is Murder

Dr. J. W. Daehler, who also assisted in the postmortem examination firmly believes that it is a double murder. He too says it would be impossible for Newman to have shot himself three times. "The fact that no gun was found also indicates to me that neither one of the victims used a gun," he was possible, but hardly probable.

When asked if it were not possible that a tramp, who bent on sleeping in the house made away with the death-dealing gun after he found the couple lying lifeless on the floor of the little hillside cottage. Dr. Daehler said this was possible, but hardly probable.

Dr. Micklethwaite Has Theory

Dr. O. R. Micklethwaite, who assisted in the postmortem examination is of the same opinion as Coroner Hendrickson except that he believes they were murdered on the night they left Portsmouth. "I believe the couple had visited the house near Davis Station before and the murderer knew this and when Newman and Miss Doyle arrived there a week ago yesterday the murder was committed. The gun user then to throw off suspicion drove the Newman car around to the West Side, where it was abandoned. I examined Newman's three wounds and feel reasonably certain that he could not have shot himself three times."

Dr. Micklethwaite is of the opinion that the gun user was actuated by jealousy and that the shooting began just after the couple arrived at the cottage. He thinks the murderer then lost no time in driving the machine to the West Side, where it was found.

Coroner Thinks Couple Were Not Murdered Friday Night

Coroner J. D. Hendrickson does not share the opinion that Newman and Miss Doyle were murdered the same night they left Portsmouth, Friday, October 21.

"This could not have been as their bodies would have been badly decomposed, despite the fact that they were comparatively in the open," the coroner said today. "It is my firm belief that the double murder was committed not later than Wednesday. The bodies gave every indication of having been lifeless only two or possibly three days. There is only one theory, that of murder, and I shall render my verdict to this effect," the coroner said.

"After close examination of Newman's wounds it would have been impossible for him to have shot himself three times, through the left side, left hip and through the left temple. I am going to sift every phase of the sensational affair in an effort to unravel one of the greatest mysteries that has confronted the officials since I have come to Portsmouth."

Seen With Another Woman

It became known today that Detective Fred Baker has definite information that Newman was seen in Sciotoville on the night before he left Portsmouth in company with Louise Doyle. "And I have learned that the woman was not Miss Doyle," Mr. Baker said this morning. "This may prove to be an important link in our chain of circumstantial evidence and I have placed this information in the hands of Prosecutor Sheppard."

Saw Men Near Death House

When asked this morning if he had learned if any persons had visited the cottage from Friday, October 21, till yesterday John Snedaker said that he had not. "My wife and daughter were all around the place two or three days last week, but never thought to look in the house. There is a big hickory nut tree near it and they gathered nuts under it," Mr.

Snedaker said Saturday. He says two men were seen in the yard one day last week, but he paid no attention to this as men frequently gathered nuts in the yard and on the nearby hillside.

Mr. Snedaker is of the opinion that the couple was murdered either in the cottage or nearby. He says it would have been almost impossible to have carried their bodies from the West Side.

Mud On Shoes Is Clue

Coroner Hendrickson made a close examination of the mud on the soles of the shoes worn by Newman and Miss Doyle. He stated Saturday that it tallies with the color of the mud and dirt around the Tremper farm, but not with the dirt around the cottage, where the bodies were found. "I scraped some of the dried mud off their shoes and have it in my possession."

The fact that there was no dust on either of the victims' clothes leads me to believe that they had not long been in the cottage."

Coroner Hendrickson scouts the theory that they were murdered on the night they left Portsmouth. "This could not be as their bodies showed plainly that they had not been dead over 72 hours."

Scott Takes Stand In Own Behalf

YOUNGSTOWN, O., October 29.—With court recessed today, both sides in the trial for bribery of David J. Scott, suspended safety director, were preparing today for what is expected to be the windup of the bitterly fought case on Monday. Scott took the stand in his own behalf yesterday, and entered sweeping denials of previous testimony that he had solicited and accepted bribes from bootleggers. He admitted, however, that he still had a $350 clock sent him by a bootlegger. Cross examination of Scott will begin Monday morning.

may or may not have had some assurance that their revenue would not in the meantime be diminished through reductions in freight rates. That's something which only the Interstate Commerce Commission can answer but the prevailing view here is that the commission and the United States Railroad Board now are working together and that a drop in income will not be forced without some understanding about diminished costs, though to be sure the statisticians may find in the next few months railroad earnings increased through a general

Family Not Superstitious

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Chandler are not given to superstition. They began moving into the cottage, where the dead bodies were found. "I never did believe in superstition and now is a poor time to start," Mrs. Chandler told a Times man as she was busily engaged in mopping up the blood, where Newman's body was found. "I think they were carried into the house and that is another reason why I have no fears. The dead will not come back and so we lost no time in moving into the house."

"Well, she has more courage than I have," said a local woman, who had motored to the scene and was shown through the cottage where the bodies were found.

John Wheeler Newman, the eldest son of Clay and Louie Newman, of 1228 Ninth street, was born May 8, 1894, in Adams county. He came to Portsmouth with his parents when a boy. After leaving school he entered the employ of the Excelsior Shoe Company and had been a faithful and valuable employee until the time of his sudden disappearance from the city.

In 1913 he was married to Miss Dessie Lee, of Pike county, who with three young sons, Harold, Paul and Charles, survive. He also leaves his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clay Newman, of Ninth street; Oscar Newman, of Second street; Mrs. Gaynelle Long, of Third street; Myrtle, Elda, Goldie, and Guy at home. At an early age he joined with the First Christian church of this city.

The body will be at the home Sunday evening, friends being invited there to view it. Funeral services from the home Monday morning at ten o'clock. Burial in Greenlawn will be private. Rev. Charles R. Oakley will be in charge of the last rites. Members of Peerless Lodge K. of P., will also take part in the last rites.

No Services Here

No funeral services will be held here for Miss Louise Doyle. The body will be taken Monday morning to Carrs, Ky. Funeral services and burial will be held there Monday.

Centre Scores On Harvard

HARVARD STADIUM, CAMBRIDGE, MASS., Oct. 28.—Portsmouth Center and Harvard football teams met in their annual game in the stadium this afternoon. Captain Armstrong of Centre won the toss and elected to defend the north goal, giving Harvard the kick-off. There was not a breath of air stirring when Harvard kicked the ball into play at 2:30.

Score and first period:
Harvard 0; Centre 0.
Score and second period:
Harvard 0; Centre 0.
Centre scored a touchdown in the third period. McMillen failed to kick goal.
Score:
Centre 6; Harvard 0.
Play during the first period was confined almost exclusively to the twenty yard line. Kicking off, Harvard sent the ball over Centre's goal. Returned to Centre's 20 yard line. Centre kicked after gaining 10 yards by plunges, to the crimson's 35 yard line. The crimson then gained 15 yards, but fumbled and Centre recovered. Centre could not gain and tried for a field goal, but missed.
Although Harvard was inside of Centre's 15 yard line in the second period the crimson was unable to score by either field goal or touchdown.
Harvard opened the second period with a forward pass for a 15 yard gain. From Centre's 45 yard line Harvard in a series of plays worked the ball to Centre's 18 yard line. The southerners put up a great defense here and Bull replaced Johnson for a field goal kick. The kick failed and Centre put in play on its 20 yard line. The period ended with the ball on Centre's 20 yard line.

Crowds Are Attending Bible Conference; Dr. Lawrence Speaks Tonight On "Spooks"

A large crowd gathered at the First Baptist Church last night to hear Dr. Lawrence of Texas preach a sermon on the "Second Coming of Christ." Five reasons were outlined why Christ will return to the earth in actual visible presence: "An unfilled promise to David as King of Israel, an unconvertible world, an unmanicured adversary, an unbridled creation and an unveiled Christ."
Tonight he will speak on "Spooks" and will discuss the questions "Where are the dead, shall we know each other in heaven, will there be a second chance and everlasting punishment."
Sunday afternoon a mass meeting is being planned at which time Dr. Lawrence will deliver one of his most popular addresses on the subject "His Majesty, The Devil." This address has been delivered a great many times all over the country and is said to be most interesting and enlightening.
All sessions of the Bible conference are held in the First Baptist where Dr. Lawrence will also preach morning and evening Sunday, his subjects being "The Perfect Man" and "Something New or Twice Born."

Woman Found Dead In Bed

Mrs. Amanda Elliott, 68, was found dead in bed at her home on Timmons Hill, head of Linden avenue, about four o'clock this morning. She was found by her daughter, Mrs. A. J. Daniels, of 1820 Linden avenue, who was in the same bed with her mother. Mrs. Daniels was taken suddenly ill yesterday and at midnight a doctor was in attendance, but shortly afterwards she went to sleep and other persons in the household retired. Mrs. Daniels awakened about four o'clock and discovered that the spark of life had fled from the body.
Mrs. Elliott had been ailing for a couple of weeks, but during the last couple of days was up and around and was well enough to perform some of her household duties. Yesterday her condition took a sudden change for the worse. The deceased was born in Danville county, Va., in 1854. The family came to Portsmouth about ten years ago from Catlettsburg, Ky., where they resided for several years. Mrs. Elliott was married twice, her second husband, Isaac Elliott, surviving. He is a Civil War veteran about 78 years of age.
Besides the husband the following children survive: Mrs. A. J. Daniels, of Linden avenue; Paul Johnson, of Louisa, Ky.; Mrs. Maggie Davis, Huntington; Mrs. J. Montgomery, Linden avenue, and Mrs. H. Redden, of Galatia street. Three children have passed away. Captain J. M. Johnson drowned in the Ohio river at Catlettsburg ten years ago. He was her oldest son. A daughter Mary, died at the age of 37 about twenty years ago. Mrs. Laura Caldwell was found dead in her home on Eleventh street, this city three years ago.
Luther Daniels, a son of Mrs. A. J. Daniels, of Linden avenue, and a grandson of Mrs. Elliott, died three weeks ago today.
Mrs. Elliott was reared a Methodist and belonged to an M. E. church before locating in Portsmouth. She was a good Christian woman and was well liked by every one who knew her.
The remains will be taken to Catlettsburg, Ky., Monday, funeral services to be held in the Baptist church there.

Johnson Being Held On Serious Charge

The Cincinnati Enquirer of local interest Saturday said:
Paul Johnson, 38 years old, Portsmouth, Ohio, railroad freight conductor, in Juvenile Court yesterday was found to be guilty of contributing to juvenile delinquency and was remanded to jail by Judge Charles W. Hoffmann to await sentence. Police testified Johnson acted improperly with two boys when in the West End railroad yards. He denied the accusation. Johnson told George Abrams, Juvenile Officers, he expected to marry a girl in Portsmouth, Ohio. He exhibited receipts showing he had purchased money orders for the girl. Juvenile officers state the girl is but 17 years old, and Portsmouth authorities are to be consulted before the case is disposed of finally.
Juvenile Court officers are also investigating the fact that Johnson carried a memorandum book containing the names of more than 100 boys and girls. A number of these children have been interviewed by juvenile officers but deny that they know the man.

Highland Team Looms As Elementary Winner

In the elementary school football league this morning the Highland school team took a more firm grip on first place by defeating McKinley school, 24 to 0. The Highland team is showing better form each Saturday and will no doubt go through the schedule undefeated. The last games in the schedule will be played next Saturday.
The first game this morning was between Union and Massie. The Union team winning by a score of 33 to 0.
The second game was between Highland and Round. The former team winning 20 to 13. Round played a good game despite the loss of their best players, Mullins and Hoke, who are out with injuries.
Garfield will be the runner up in the league and is now safely resting in second position. Massie has not won a single game and now say that they only have one ambition and that is to beat Highland next Saturday.

Financial Support For Schools Emphasized

CINCINNATI, O., October 29.—The importance of local financial support for elementary schools was emphasized in the address of Prof. W. C. Bagley, Columbia University, which closed the convention of the South Western Ohio Teachers' Association today. Dr. Bagley, reiterated the statement that "the tendency toward re-entrenchment is the greatest danger facing education today."
"The whole web of the world lies in elementary education," Dr. Bagley said. "Only a few states give financial aid to this purpose. It must come from local communities. If the local community fails in its maintenance of the elementary schools, then the nation falls."
"No community has ever reached the maximum of its investment in education. Every penny expended brings a larger return than a similar amount spent for any other purpose."

England's 800 Silent Sentinels.
Around the British Isles there are now more than eight hundred light-houses, silent sentinels of the sea, keeping watch and guard over ships that pass in the night. In the beginning of last century, or rather a hundred years ago, there were only twenty-five, and the illumination was inferior. Now some of these have a brilliancy equal to thirty million candle power, visible for a hundred miles under the proper conditions.

SOCIETY

The officers of the Eastern Star Lodge delightedly surprised Mrs. Esther Morris, last evening at the home of her mother, Mrs. W. S. Bender, 731 Bereneth street. Mrs. Morris who is one of the efficient officers of the Eastern Star is moving to Dover, Ohio, Monday and in appreciation for the service she has rendered to the lodge, the officers presented her with a beautiful Eastern Star pin. One of the most interesting features of the evening was the spook chamber. An imitation corpse with moving arms was fixed in the chamber and the children were invited to go in and shake hands with the spook. Later doughnuts, lemonade, and candy pumpkin heads were served as refreshments.

GIRL WHISTLER IS TO BE AT MANLY CHURCH SUNDAY MORNING

Sunday is Rally Day at Manly Sunday school. The school is a little late in holding Rally Day this year, but it is hoped to make up for this in the quality of the program. To assist in making it the greatest Sunday school day of the year, ever experienced, in Manly the official board has secured Miss Margaret Matheny of Columbus, one of the greatest whistlers in the world. She is a daughter of a former pastor, Rev. Stacy Matheny.
Miss Matheny is accompanied on the piano by her sister Thelma. When imitating birds she whistles alone. The United States Government thought enough of her work to send her across the sea to whistle for the American soldiers. She is a professional and will give a full program.
There will be no preaching service in the morning in order to give more time to Miss Matheny. This is a fine opportunity to hear the very best of those possessing this rare gift. All members of the Sunday school are urged to extend a hearty welcome to others to attend.
The Epworth League tomorrow night at 6 will be led by Howard Herdman.
The subject for the evening preaching service by Rev. C. W. Brady will be "Gaining the World and Losing the Soul."

Mrs. Clyde Schultz of Ninth street entertained the members of the Elite club and a few friends with a Halloween party Thursday evening. Strewn of black and orange paper and black cats and witches decorated the rooms. The diversions of the evening were games and guessing contests. Mrs. L. C. Murphy won the prize in the guessing contest. Later the hostess served delicious refreshments to the following club members: Meadames S. E. Waller, E. J. Shumate, L. C. Murphy, F. N. Evans, S. S. Gulkar, H. B. Keeras, E. B. Martin. The guests for the evening included Mrs. J. Jeffords, the Misses Helen Schultz, Alma Jeffords, Grace and Dorothy Gulkar, Ruth Evans and Virginia Schultz, Messrs. C. Miller, W. B. Combs and Grant Miller.

Members of Judge Blair's Sunday school class will give a progressive Halloween party 81st Monday evening, October 31st. The class will meet at the home of Mrs. Ben Rhodes, 1236 Ninth street, at 7:30. They will go from there to the home of Miss Mary Holt, 1128 Eighth street, thence to the home of A. E. Cunniff, 1012 Eighth street, and lastly to the home of Mrs. George Denmore, 1101 Ninth street, where they will unmask and partake of refreshments. At the homes of Mrs. Rhodes, Miss Helt and Mrs. Cunniff all kinds of homemade candies, cookies and popcorn will be for sale. A program of games and music will also be provided for the members and their guests.

OBITUARY

Ritter Funeral
The body of Earl C. Ritter 304 1-2 Gallia avenue arrived home yesterday at noon from Chillicothe. Funeral services were held this afternoon from the home at 2 o'clock with J. C. Harris of the Ohio Avenue Christian church in charge. Burial was in Greenlawn.

Postmortem Held

A post mortem examination was held yesterday over the body of the late Mrs. Amanda Elliott, who was found dead in her home on Timmons Hill. It was conducted by Drs. O. D. Tatje and W. D. Micklethwaite in the Windel morgue.

Timely Apologies

Few things do more to lubricate the wheels of existence than the timely and kindly apology, and few things are more tiresome and irritating than the apology that is an intrusion and unnecessary. Well-bred persons are always ready with a more or less perfunctory "I beg your pardon" and they feel not the slightest humiliation in making this sort of apology. It is a remark that may be applied freely to perfect strangers as well as to close friends.

L. O. O. F. Home Coming Tonight

All Odd Fellows in the city are requested to be present at the hall at 6:30 for the Home Coming celebration. The big parade will start at 7 o'clock after which a big meeting will be held in the hall.

Woman Suffers Loss Of Finger

Mrs. Esther Hoover, Gallia avenue, New Boston, will be missing the index finger of her right hand, the result of an accident she met with while at work in the plant of the Mitchell Manufacturing Company Saturday. It was caught in a machine and so badly crushed that amputation was necessary in a local hospital.

Couple Caught; Deny Guilt

James Hunter and Georgia Gardner were the names given by a couple arrested by the police early Saturday morning at the home of the woman at 515 Third street and locked up on statutory charges.
In Municipal court later they denied the charge and Judge Sprague continued the case for hearing until Monday and sent the woman home to her children and Hunter was held.

Missionaries To Speak At U. B. Church

The Missionary Spirit will characterize all the services at the United Brethren church Sunday. At the morning hour of worship Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Mignerey, who sail very shortly as the representatives of the local church, at the Rotifunk Mission Station, Sierra Leone, West Africa, will have all the time to discuss their mission and the work they expect to accomplish.
The evening service will be given over entirely to the presentation of a wonderful missionary pageant by the missionary societies of the church.

New Barge Line Established

GALLIPOLIS, O., Oct. 29.—The Water Transport company of Pittsburgh has inaugurated the first regular barge line between all Ohio river cities of importance and St. Louis and New Orleans.
The tow boat Transporter, with over 8,000 tons of manufactured steel products is due to pass here today, and stops at Point Pleasant to take in tow the large Klondike, the largest steel barge ever constructed in inland waters.
The Klondike goes to South America via New Orleans and the Gulf of Mexico. To be used by the Aluminia Ore company. It has a capacity of 5,000 tons.

Sunday Afternoon Vesper Service

Those who get pleasure from the rendition of good music will have an excellent opportunity to enjoy themselves on Sunday afternoon at the Second Presbyterian church.
To Miss Anna Cramer, who directs the music, is due the credit for arranging a splendid program which will include some of the city's best artists. There will be solos by Mrs. Gilmore and Mr. Meade while Mrs. Kimble and Mr. Denton will sing a duet. The choir have prepared several anthems of an high order and Miss Cramer announces that she will play the overture from "Poet and Peasant" and "The Love Song," the latter by Liszt.
These services will probably be continued at monthly intervals as there is no little interest being displayed by those who would like to have the opportunity of enjoying real music. It is to be hoped that this will be possible.

Want A Big Attendance

A full attendance of the members of the Meir's Bible class of the First Evangelical Sunday school is desired for tomorrow morning as the class will attend divine services immediately after Sunday school.

FINAL NIGHT FOR MEN'S CHORUS

The big men's chorus of the Second Presbyterian church will lead the singing at the Second Presbyterian church for the last time on Sunday evening. These men, six strong, have been an inspiration to the congregation for the past three Sunday evenings. Not only are their own numbers excellent but they are particularly good in leading the congregational singing. There is an urge which reaches every one present to sing when they see this splendid body of men and hear the tremendous volume of music which rolls down from the choir loft to attend.

Miss Dolly Wise

She is here to answer any and all questions concerning love, matrimony, troubles, woes, etiquette, etc. Inquiries should be addressed to Miss Dolly Wise, care The Daily Times, Portsmouth, Ohio.

Dear Miss Wise—My hair just came out in handfuls and I want you to tell me what to do with it?
WORRIED GIRL.
Make a bonfire out of it.

Dear Dolly—I am 10 years of age and am going with a boy of 21. He wants me to marry him, but I told him that I was too young, and that I thought we ought to wait awhile, and he did not like it a bit. Now Dolly, I think a great deal of him and he does of me. My mother says she thinks we are old enough to get married, but I do not think this way about it. Dolly, he comes to see me twice a week and I think this often enough, don't you? So many other girls have so much trouble after they get married. I think I could have a better time to stay single for awhile. Dolly, do you think I could get a job in the city, as I do not want to stay in the country any longer.

COUNTRY KID.
I think you have the right idea about getting married. You will never regret it if you wait a year or two longer. If you have a good home in the country, don't come to the city to work. Most city girls would be glad to change places with you.

Dear Dolly—I would like to have a copy of the Needlecraft magazine for May 1918. Do you know where I could get it?
A READER.
Perhaps some reader has a copy. If not you might send to the office of the magazine and get a copy.

Dear Miss Wise—I am a young girl 16 years old and coming to you for advice. Dolly, I have been in love with a boy for about 2 years and he always said he loved me. He is 21 and Dolly we were engaged. We were to be married when I was 18. Now Dolly, one of my people liked the boy. Dolly, I didn't want to care for me, but he said he loved me. I don't want to go with him, and he said he would wait for me. I don't want to go with him, and he said he would wait for me. I don't want to go with him, and he said he would wait for me.

Dear Dolly—I am a country girl and I will be 18 in about a month. Dolly, I don't want to care for me, but he said he loved me. I don't want to go with him, and he said he would wait for me. I don't want to go with him, and he said he would wait for me. I don't want to go with him, and he said he would wait for me.

Dear Dolly—I am a country girl and I will be 18 in about a month. Dolly, I don't want to care for me, but he said he loved me. I don't want to go with him, and he said he would wait for me. I don't want to go with him, and he said he would wait for me. I don't want to go with him, and he said he would wait for me.

CONFESSIONS OF A MOVIE STAR

CHAPTER XII—A KISS THE CENSOR CUT

I NEVER shall know what possessed me when Cissy and I went on for "reconciliation and embrace" in the fade out of "Love in Least." But I remember that I saw Dick watching us, and that on an impulse I murmured to Cissy:

"Make it the real thing this time, Cissy. If you want to, let's put it over—and make an end of the criticism!"

"You're a sport, May! I only hope you mean it!"

The retake proved that Cissy was an extraordinary actor-lover. For the first time in my career the censors cut one of my love scenes. And I guess they had good reason.

The minute the cameras stopped, I was pleased and sorry at the same time. There was, I had to admit, an embarrassing little thrill in Cissy Sheldon's kiss. It astonished me, confused me.

The pleasure I derived from the scene consisted in seeing Mr. Dick Barnes turn on his heel and fairly fling himself down the studio stairs.

His scorn reacted upon me and embarrassed me. I felt suddenly as if I had been insulted—that it was all my own fault. I was miserably conscious of my own responsibility for Cissy's behavior.

I rushed down the corridor. I couldn't face my maid. I couldn't face myself in my mirror. I was overcome with disgust. Not a living soul could I face until I had recovered my poise.

I turned from the state air of the studio into the court where the motors were parked. I stepped onto the platform—and looked squarely into Dick Barnes' eyes.

He must have perceived that I was flushed and ready to weep. He blushed violently, raised his hat, started to speak impulsively.

"Then he restrained himself and I lifted him for his power over himself. He asked formally:

"May I call your chauffeur for you, Miss Scott?"

"Tell him, please, to be ready in 10 minutes."

All the acting in a movie company isn't done on the sets. I thought as I went back to my dressing room. Moreover, a man does not have to be handsome in order to be fascinating.

I couldn't help comparing Dick and Cissy. Dick was not an Adonis. He was not as tall as Cissy. His features were far from classic. His brows were heavy, his chin decidedly firm and masterful. He photographed remarkably as a bad man. But for moments, in real life, he surpassed any man in the company.

Cissy—so I called him because it's his real name and because he liked to have me use it—Cissy Sheldon liked to be beautiful when it pleased him to do so.

He had been behaving wonderfully to everybody since the casting directors had put him opposite me. Everybody had noticed the change in him. And some had taken unnecessary pains to tell me about it.

I was glad Cissy had reformed. It was good to have everybody happy in the studios. From star to door-tender, we felt the responsibility of keeping the company working in a period of business depression.

I undertook the new story with the determination of making it my best story. Many studies were closing. I must not let mine close. If I failed, I would drag down so many friendly people.

Rev. Shannon Thrills Great Crowd Of Men By Telling The Story Of His Life

Tonight: 6:45 p. m.—Prayer service upstairs.
7:15 p. m.—Song service.
8:00 p. m.—Sermon by Rev. William W. Shannon.

Sunday: 7:15 p. m.—Closing service of the union evangelistic campaign. Last opportunity to hear the evangelists.

For one hour last night, down at Bigelow church, a great audience of men sat breathless while a man told them the story of his life. They leaned forward eagerly, that they might not miss a single word, and "Bill" Shannon talked to them on "Fighting Devils." It was a long fight, but when he came at last to the place of victory, not a man in the house but felt somehow a great confidence that he, too, might find himself the courage to fight and win—"with God's help."

The greatness of "Bill" Shannon lies in the fact that he is so human. He is eminently a man among men; and they know it, as soon as he begins to speak. There is a certain shyness noticeable as he gives his personal experiences which is distinctly novel; in warm, friendly fashion he takes men into his confidence so that he quickly forgets that there is anyone else in the audience but Bill and him. When he finishes, his auditors feel almost as though they themselves had been through the experience.

But this shyness does not obtain when he comes to express his scorn and hatred of the things that defile and destroy men and their homes; then he becomes magnificent in his scorn of littleness and cowardice and meanness and sin.

It was an unusual audience, not composed merely of First Presbyterian and Bigelow M. E. men, but there were men present from practically every church in the city, and a number of pastors. The men interested in the union services appreciate most heartily the cooperation given by those of other churches in spreading abroad the invitation for this service.

The music for a men's meeting is entirely different from that at any other service. First came those songs set to a martial air, leading on to a very tender solo by Mrs. O. J. Deitzler, "That's Why I Love Him So." Following this, the men sang "I Love To Tell The Story," in a way to do credit to any audience. It was great to hear the men's voices, for after all there is nothing so inspiring as the singing of a large body of men. Mr. Shannon evidently sensed the temper of his audience, for he rose to the occasion with a truly great sermon, simple and self-revealing; but humble, direct and straightforward, and delivered with an intensity of purpose and a vigor that left a tremendous and lasting effect.

It was this address that he delivered at practically every army camp in America during the war, the New England camps excepted.

"The first time I gave this message was six years ago on a street corner in Chicago; it was the first I ever gave anywhere, and I have given it many times since. I bring it to you tonight because it is the real story of my life, the story of ambitions, of battles and defeats; and I feel that the experience of many of you here has been very nearly the same as mine."

"I want you to know that I am talking to you not because I think I am anythink different from you; I think just a mere man—an ordinary Irishman from Pennsylvania. I am not going to make any attempt tonight at parading divinity. I have only one object in what I am to say: I know something about a man's life, and know what it can become when God has a chance to know a life."

"What do I know about the life of the workman, you say? Is it so easy for a preacher to stand up and talk who doesn't know a thing about the struggles of those who labor. I want to say right here that there is not a man in Portsmouth who knows more about work than I do. At the age of about 14 began work in Berwick at the Jackson and Woodin Mfg. Co., carrying nuts and bolts for my father, who was a car builder. At fourteen I went to work on a paddling furnace, and night after night I worked there, stripped to the waist. There is nothing about a car I don't know."

"Well, you say, what do you know about the life of a business man? I know about that too. And I know that there are even greater temptations to be met with there than attack the workman. Still a boy, I went to work for the Edison Co. in Philadelphia at a lively pace, till father came and took me back home to calm down, and I went into the contracting business with him. Two years later I took the business over, and in three years I was netting fifty to sixty dollars a day. I know the life of a business man."

"What do I know about politics? At the age of twenty-five I was elected to the city council. The president of the council ascertained that I didn't know anything about the affairs of the city; I showed him that I could learn, and put my man in to succeed him as president two years later. I was re-elected, and then became mayor."

"Seeing the tremendous power the liquor interests wielded in politics, I became the manager of a brewery. I saw the power a newspaper had; and got hold of one. In politics, I played the game to win, as other men do it today. For seventeen months, the auditors went over my books trying to catch me, but they found nothing on me; I wasn't fool enough to go to the pen for a few hundred dollars. There is plenty of graft in politics, however, graft that is safe—like getting an option on a good place for a hotel, knowing you could get the court to grant you a license for a bar; and then selling it at double the purchase price. They can't get you on that."

"They withdrew the charge against me when the seventeen months had gone by; I caught the distasteful attorney with the goods, and he decided the next morning that he had been much mistaken, and so the whole attack on me was withdrawn. My slate is clean."

"Let me give you another example of graft. A reform councilman slipped away to Philadelphia to see about some home for the fire department. He was then $1.10 a foot—$1.00 for the hose, and 10 cents for the graft; they do it yet. I had him where I wanted him; and one afternoon I got his resignation to the council, then as postmaster, then his promise to leave town in 30 days. He's only been back once since."

"In 1912 I went as a delegate to the Progressive convention in Chicago. At this convention they sang 'Ourselves Christian Soldiers.' It took me back to the time when as a boy my father opened the old Bible and held family worship. I wanted to get away; with all my influence and power I felt my life a miserable failure. My resolution was honest; but it didn't last. It wasn't till later I found out why."

"The speaker here told of his war experience when at Paris Island, where a little 16-year-old Jackie, too homesick to eat ice cream, refused to take his discharge 'by confessing he was under age.' 'That's the kind of boys,' he said, 'that won the war and shipped Germany. But the greatest battles are those that are fought, not on the world's battlefields, but within human souls. It is treason to haul down the flag of your country; what is it to haul down the clean white flag of your soul, and surrender to the enemy of humankind?'"

"Our boys have been sacrificed in vain if we crush only Germany. What is the foe? I opened my Bible one day and found there is not a problem of ours it has not mentioned and solved—and 'Sh' is the foe we confront there. No man can go against it alone—and win. It comes into one's life a little thing; we nurse it along, and it grows and grows till it makes us a slave to habit, or desire or passion."

"Men think they are all right as long as they act according to the dictates of their conscience; but a conscience seared by sin and without God is an unsafe guide. Sin destroys not only the individual, but the home as well."

"Sin destroys the conscience of the nation; the Lord knows the last thing the politicians want is an awakened public conscience, for that would put them out of business in no time. When the public conscience is aroused, you'll see if we can't enforce the laws!"

A WIFE IN THE MAKING

ARLINE CONFESSES

Late that same day my observant partner might have seen Miss Laura meandering up the road towards the house in which Arline Bates boarded. She carried her umbrella firmly in her right hand and wore her newest bonnet in a determined way.

"When Arline invited her to go to her room a few minutes later the good lady was to all outward appearance as cool and composed as when serving tea on her own front porch.

"This is good of you, Miss Laura," began Arline, with a wondering look in her eyes. To tell the truth, the very last person she expected to have call on her was Mrs. King. No inkling of this, however, showed in her manner. Inwardly she was trying to puzzle out what it meant. Miss Laura was a firm ally of Cherry's, as everyone knew.

"Mighty pretty little place this is," said Miss Laura, glancing round the cozy room approvingly. "People are learning how to interior decorate nowadays, thank goodness. Not what we used to be as youngsters, I can tell you."

"Glad you like my digs, Miss Laura," answered Arline, as she settled herself more comfortably into her chair.

"I guess you are a mite surprised to see me, aren't you, now?" asked her visitor with a smile. "Last person you dreamed of paying a call on you, isn't it?"

"I'm very glad, indeed, Miss Laura," said Arline, suavely. "My visitors are few and far between. I have many friends in Wellsburg and it hurts, once in a while, to be left so—sort of alone."

"I know, I know just how you feel,"

By John Collins Jackson

AN OPEN MIND AND THE BIBLE

The Independent of last week quotes with high praise the following from a letter by President Harding to Gov. Parrington, of Hawaii, to be read at the opening of the Peace Congress of the world, held recently at Honolulu. The paragraph is on the distinction between propaganda, which Mr. Harding disparages, and education, which he exalts.

"Propaganda aims primarily at shutting up the mind against other conclusions than those which the propagandists desire to implant. Education, on the contrary, aims to open the mind, to prepare it to make it receptive, and to urge it to formulate its own conclusions. Propaganda would at last mean intellectual paralysis; education is, when properly employed, intellectual stimulus. It is better that men should think than that they should accept the conclusions formulated by other men for them."

President Harding is a devout Baptist. This utterance is sane and strong. "Sweetness and light!" It applies to sound Bible study as much as to sound government. Propaganda is partisanism. Education is information. The one appeals to prejudice, the other to intelligence. It is the aim of these articles to get Bible readers to see this truth, and keep an open mind. Bible-bound adherence to the dead past, "means finally intellectual paralysis." God requires you to use your reason in religion as much as in education. "Properly employed, education is intellectual stimulus." You need your best mental powers in discerning God's will and ways. Faith and prayer are mental.

The world has its conservatives and its progressives; brokenness and freedom. Both are needed for safe progress. But mental inertia causes conservatism to preponderate. "Progression pulls against a dead weight. Between the two the world moves slowly, but it moves. In Bible study conservatism says: 'God has spoken.' Progression adds: 'And God still speaks.' Conservatism says: 'The Bible tells us what God did.' Progression adds: 'The Bible also tells us what God is doing.' Conservatism sees man's golden age in the long distant past. Progression sees it in the approaching future. Conservatism says: 'God once lived in this world.' Progression says: 'God yet lives in all worlds.' The open mind realizes that God is not dead, nor idle, nor absent. 'The Lord of hosts is with us, and the God of Jacob is our refuge.'"

Conservatism says: "The Bible is God's word." Progression says: "The Bible contains God's word." Conservatism believes God is a King, and that his moral government is like the ancient monarchial customs, and laws, which held that might makes right. Progression believes that God is a Father, and that his moral government is that of the family, where right makes might. Both of these stances are based upon the Bible. The cruelest and earliest plans of the Old Testament favor the former. The life and teachings of Jesus give us the latter.

CLOTHES LINE BREAKS; BOY HURT

Harry Shaw, 6 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Shaw, of 1417, Spring street, suffered a broken left leg above the knee several days ago when a wire clothes line on which he was swinging broke causing him to fall on a board. Virgil Fowler X-rayed the injured leg which was treated by Drs. W. W. Smith and E. O. McCall.

A Pioneer For Christ

Many of the older members of All Saints' parish are more or less familiar with the story of that great missionary bishop, Philander Chase, who came to Portsmouth in 1810 and presided over the meeting at which this old parish was organized. But many of the younger generation know nothing of the life and labors of this great man. The rector will preach on Philander Chase, first Bishop of Ohio, and a pioneer for Christ, at the morning service at All Saints' church tomorrow. It would be difficult to find a more interesting topic for a sermon. The great bishop was indeed "an epistle known and read of all men." Let us unite in paying tribute to his memory tomorrow morning. Service at 10:30.

The church is located two blocks west of Chillicothe street, at the corner of Fourth and Court streets.

Life Beyond The Grave

If you are interested in the great question of what lies beyond the grave, (and who is not?) you should arrange to attend the 7:00 p. m. service at All Saints' church tomorrow.

The rector will discuss the question, "Does Death End All?" The sermon will be a plain, straightforward discussion of the facts upon which belief in immortality is based. It will help you to give a reason for "the faith that is in you," but, better than this, it will bring to those who mourn dear ones departed, comfort and knowledge, in some cases new knowledge and fresh hope.

To reach the church, leave the street car at Fourth and Chillicothe streets and walk two squares west on Fourth to Court.

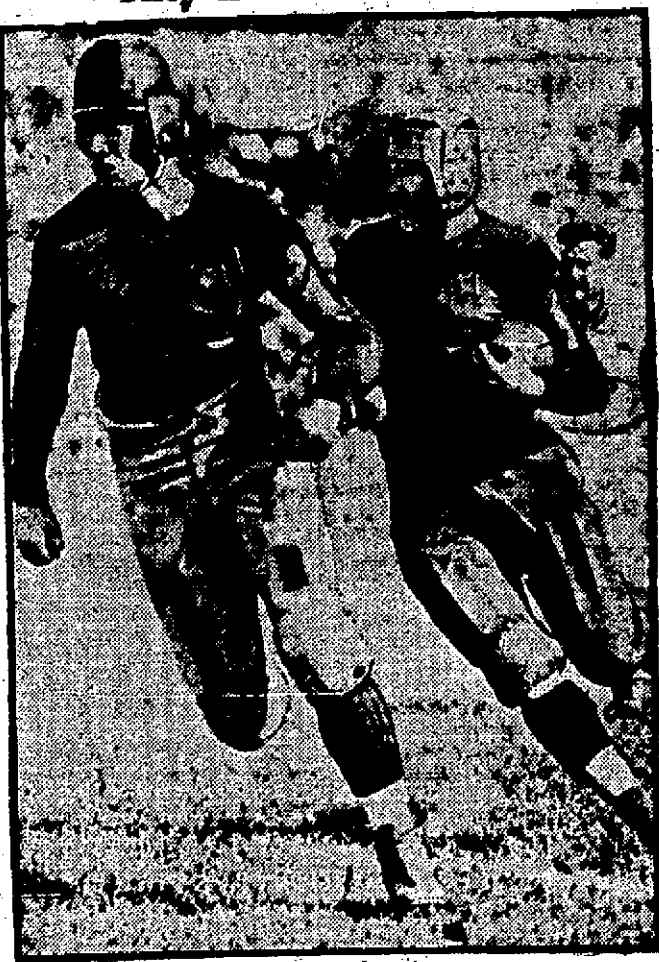

SOCIETY

The members and guests of the New Century Club were accorded a rare treat at their meeting yesterday afternoon, when Mrs. Modile J. Williams of Toledo lectured on Art. Preceding the lecture Mrs. H. C. Bugh, accompanied by Mrs. O. J. Deitzel on the piano, sang a cycle of songs, "Dearer"—Sidney Homer; "Yesterday and Today"—Charles Gilbert Sproule; "Morning"—Oler Speaks. Charming her audience by her perfect rendition, Mrs. Lena Kline Reed, then in a charming manner, introduced Mrs. Williams who lectured on "The Meaning of Designs in Rugs and Brocades." Among many of beautiful shawls, was that "brocades whisper and rugs talk." Mrs. Williams at the close of her talk exhibited brocades and rugs. Several of her brocades dated back to Shakespeare's time, and her rugs were exquisite. She told of the sentiment and stories of the different designs that Orientals weave into their rugs. The different figures were typical of the purity, religion and durability. Mrs. Williams said the value of a rug lies in its color and individuality of design. The wools must have been carefully selected and the dyes be purely vegetable. There is nothing quite like the wonderful color of well selected and well-dyed wool rugs which have been subjected to Oriental usage and to the mellowing influence of half a century, for it takes that time to at least properly dye a rug. The speaker supplemented her talk with a number of beautiful Persian and Turkish rugs, and also some beautiful rugs made by the inhabitants of the Caucasus mountains, and some Bokharu rugs. After the lecture an informal social hour was enjoyed during which time the audience was given an opportunity to meet Mrs. Williams and also inspect her collection of fine rugs and brocades. The hall was beautifully decorated with palms, ferns and large baskets of cut flowers, giving an Oriental atmosphere to the surroundings. The decorators were Miss Isabel Kinney and Mrs. Ralph Marting.

The Women's City Club will meet at the home of Mrs. John E. Williams next Monday afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock. Mrs. Williams, Miss Alice Blake and Mrs. William Gates and Mrs. George M. Appel will tell of their trip to the Orient, and also exhibit curios illustrating the manners and customs of the people visited. Mrs. F. H. Winter will sing a group of songs: (a) The Blind Ploughman, by Clark; (b) Japanese Love Song, by Clayton Thomas. She will be accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Vaughn Finney. All members of the club are urged to be present.

Great Day At U. B.

The United Brethren Church is making plans for record attendance and fine services tomorrow. Every member of the church and Sunday School is expected to be present, and a special effort is being made to set a new attendance mark.

Early day will be observed at the Sunday School hour with a special program of music. Every one who attends Sunday School will be asked to stay and hear Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Miskewy, who will have complete charge of the service and talk of their coming journey to Africa as missionaries. They are to be sent out and supported by the local church.

In the evening the combined missionary societies of the church will present a pageant, "The Striking of America's Hour." Over fifty people beautifully costumed will take part in the program. An added feature will be the song service, of the good old fashioned missionary hymns, led by Professor Foster Krake.

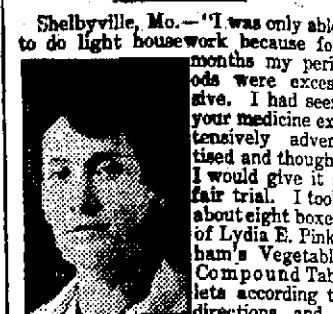

It will be a great day at U. B.

Why Do You Coddle Corns?

Simple Touch Can End Them and at Once

WHY pare a corn and keep it? Why pad it and let it remain? Or why treat it in old ways, harsh, crude and uncertain? Millions have found a new way. It is Blue-jay—the plaster or the liquid. A touch applies it, and the pain stops instantly. Then the whole corn quickly loosens and comes out. The way is gentle, scientific, sure. A famous expert evolved it. A world-famous surgical dressing house produced it. It is freeing thousands of people—why not you? Try it on one corn and you will always let it end yours. Start tonight.

Clothes From the Hedges.

The children of Nantwysnant, Carnarvonshire, are taught to gather sheep's wool from the hedges and make it into articles of clothing. The chief occupation of the district is sheep-farming, and there is much loose wool to be found on the hedges and bushes on the mountainside. Children collect this and bring it to the school, where it is washed, dyed with heather or fusie, or a combination of them, and afterwards teased, carded and spun. The yarn thus produced is made up into articles of clothing such as vests, scarfs, caps and gloves.—London TIT-BITS.

BOY IS KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE WHILE CELEBRATING HALLOWE'EN

A life was snuffed out in another distressing automobile accident which occurred at Second and Market streets shortly after six o'clock Friday evening when Herman Hodge, 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hodge, of 112 Second street, was struck by a Ford machine driven by O. H. Wilburn, 2306 Vinton avenue, and so badly hurt that he succumbed to his injuries six hours later at Hempstead hospital without regaining consciousness. Death was caused from a fractured skull sustained by the violent impact which knocked the lad to the street. He was unconscious when picked up by persons who witnessed the accident and a deep gash which extended across his head exposing the skull showed those near that the lad was badly hurt and he was rushed to the hospital.

Mr. Wilburn, whose machine hit the boy, claims that he had crossed the street in front of a westbound street car and was struck by a step of the car and knocked into the path of his machine and his story was supported by the statement of his son who with several others occupied the Wilburn car. Street car officials after an investigation stated that they had found one eye-witness of the accident who claimed that they saw the boy cross the street in front of the street car and was never hit by the street car at all. Wilburn claims he was driving slowly and insists he would not have struck the boy if he had not been hit by the street car. The boy had blackened his face and stirred in Halloween garb, had started out to make merry in celebrating the event with companions. The mother said the boy had come home soon after leaving school in the afternoon all excited in anticipation of the fun of disguising for the Halloween celebration. She stated he wanted to get out so much that he would not eat supper but put black on his face and started out. The parents arrived at the hospital soon after the accident and remained at the bedside of their son until the end. Besides the parents he is survived by four sisters, Rosie, Marie, Clementine and Justine. Mr. Hodge is an employee of the Portsmouth Sand and Gravel company. Funeral arrangements have not been completed but will probably be held Sunday.

Fire Destroys Automobile And Stable

A blaze that originated from a short circuit in a Gardner automobile belonging to Grant Young, colored, destroyed the machine and the stable in which it was stored at the rear of his home at Thirteenth and Kinney streets about 11:30 o'clock Friday night.

Two fire companies responded to an alarm and the prompt work of the fire ladders prevented the flames from spreading to adjoining buildings. The loss is estimated at $1,500, with $1,000 insurance on the car. Mr. Young is a foreman at the Whitaker-Glessner plant.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel. Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative. No gripping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action. If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime. Thousands take them every night just to keep right. Try them. 15c and 30c.

Uri Tracy

The following relative to the death of Uri Tracy is from the Herald Courier of Bristol, Tenn.: "Uri Tracy, aged 53 years, died Wednesday night at the Appalachian Hospital, at Johnson City, following a stroke of paralysis, which he received in Johnson City Saturday morning.

The funeral services were conducted at 10 o'clock this morning from the residence, 716 Maryland avenue by Dr. J. L. Rosser, of the First Baptist church. The funeral cortege will leave on train No. 12 for Portsmouth, Ohio, and burial will be there. Those selected for pallbearers were W. F. Jones, Nat Taylor, Governor Alf Taylor, Dave Taylor, Blaine Taylor and Ross Smelling. The honorary pallbearers will be S. N. Christian, N. T. Lawrence, Alton Swadley, J. L. Wood, Joe Taylor, Ben Gore, Green Royster, Robert Motters, H. M. Cloyd, N. H. Stimette and S. E. Bonasack.

Mr. Tracy, who was a member of Governor Alf Taylor's staff, was born in Portsmouth, Ohio. He had been a salesman and heavy stockholder in the Erick Company of Waynesboro, Pa., for many years.

For nearly three years Mr. Tracy had been a resident of Bristol. He was member of the First Baptist Church of this city and of all the Masonic bodies and the U. C. T. He is survived, besides his wife, his mother, Mrs. John B. Tracy, of Bristol, two brothers, C. P. Tracy and Albert Tracy of Portsmouth, and two sisters, Mrs. E. F. Holmes, of Portsmouth, and a twin sister, Mrs. Frank Myers, of Alexandria, La. One brother, the youngest of the family, died two years ago.

Mr. Tracy was well known here and in the short time that he lived here made a wide circle of friends. News of his death was a profound shock to his friends with whom he mingled a great deal while in the city.

Members of the local Council U. C. T. are requested by their officers to bring their cars to the funeral of Mr. Tracy. The body of Mr. Tracy arrived here on N. & W. train No. 3 this morning and was taken to Bates Creek, on the B. & O. train this morning, the remains being taken to the home of his sister, Mrs. B. F. Holmes.

The funeral services will be held at the Rocke Baptist church at Bates Creek Sunday at two o'clock, with Rev. A. K. Murphy of Rustown in charge.

Marshal Foch Inveterate Pipe Smoker

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 29.—Marshal Foch who is known as an inveterate pipe smoker, before boarding the steamship Paris, for his trip to America, made sure that a sufficient amount of his favorite French tobacco was on board. One of his military aides has it in charge—25 pounds of it.

Soon after he was taken off the Paris at New York and had exchanged official courtesies with the members of the reception committee on the tug Vigilant, he went inside the pilot house, lighted his small briar pipe and seemed perfectly at home. He emptied it as he approached Battery Park and put it back into his pocket.

Two hours later when comfortably established in his special train for the run to Washington, the pipe was out again. After dinner he followed the example of his guests and smoked a cigar, but this finished. The pipe again came into view, only to disappear when the train pulled into the union station.

Again at his hotel, the last thing he did before going to bed was to take a few more puffs.

Dr. Paul Andre, his physician, was right, when he said:

"The marshal loves his pipe."

Conspiracy Between Coal Miners And Operators, Claimed

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., October 29.—Altharits designed to establish the existence of an unlawful conspiracy between union coal miners and operators were introduced today in the federal court hearing on an application for a temporary injunction restricting the United Mine Workers of America in its efforts to organize the West Virginia coal field, centering around Mingo county.

The Borderland Coal Corporation, in seeking the injunction on behalf of three score West Virginia operators, also asked that any order, if granted, set aside wage agreements between the union and operators in organized fields throughout the country. Judge A. B. Anderson, presiding at the hearing, sought to conclude the case today, but counsel in the case was doubtful whether all evidence could be completed as the defendants wished to introduce numerous affidavits, which they said would disprove contentions of the complainant that an unlawful combination existed between the operators and the union.

Rumor Of Steel Merger

YOUNGSTOWN, O., October 29.—Though official confirmation is lacking, circumstantial reports of a pending merger of independent steel companies continued to circulate among steel manufacturers and bankers here today. The reports say that only the first tentative agreement has been reported in the merger, with which are linked the names of the Youngstown Steel & Tube Company, the Inland Steel Company and the Steel and Tube Company of America. Appraisal of plant values is now under way, according to these rumors and the alleged consolidation is not expected to be consummated for many months.

Dependability In Banking

The character of any bank is like a fabric, the wearing quality of which is determined by the strength of the fiber with which it is woven.

Starting fifty-eight years ago, through wars and panics this bank has protected the funds of its depositors, and woven confidence into a ravel-proof character that has grown stronger each succeeding year.

The First National Bank, by its long and enviable record of practical banking has proven that it can be depended upon. We're seeking new business on our record of old business well served.

TRINITY METHODIST CHURCH

W. C. Millikan, Pastor

The Sunday school will meet at nine o'clock and will study the very pertinent subject, "Strong Drink in a Nation's Life." Helpful class fellowship will be possible to all who come.

The morning worship at 10:15 o'clock is to be observed as "Good Literature Day," and the pastor will speak upon "What Shall We Read?"

The chorus will sing the anthem, "Send Out Thy Light," by Gounod, and Mrs. F. B. Winter will sing a solo, "The Blind Pilgrimage," by Clark.

The Epworth League devotion service at 6:30 p. m. will have for its subject, "Tessons from the patriots of the past and present," and Elmer Shoemaker will lead the meeting. All young people of this congregation are urged to come.

At the evening worship the pastor will preach upon "The Talents," and the chorus will sing two anthems, "Jerusalem," by Gounod, and "My Jesus, I Love Thee," by Edwards.

The public is cordially welcomed to these services.

Fans All Set For Ironton Invasion

Special Train Leaves Sunday
At 12:30; You'll Be There

Indications are that more than 500 football fans will board the N. & W. special to Ironton Sunday when the Smokehouse-Tank game is staged in Beechwood Park. It will leave here at 12:30 p. m., and returning will leave Ironton at 5:30. The fare will be $2.08 the round trip.

The special will stop at Sciotoville as many fans there are desirous of making the trip. It will be a rollicking, jolly crowd on board and the fans are going to be heard from at that Portsmouth-Ironton game. The fans are all set for victory as the Smokehouse team is in wonderful shape. Shake yourself down for a ticket on the special tomorrow. Help swell the crowd and uphold Portsmouth's good name as a real live, honest-to-goodness town.

Final Practice Session Today;
Ironton Scouts Double Crossed

The Smokehouse team went through another splendid practice last night in York Park and the final session was held under cover in Millbrook this afternoon when all the signals were trotted out and the team was thoroughly drilled. Ironton spies were double crossed as they were at the sixteenth street lot to scout the team and the practice was switched to Millbrook. The players are on edge for a real battle.

On with the whistle.

Double Header At Sciotoville

The Hilltop Stars will play a double header baseball game at Sciotoville Sunday afternoon. Mgr. Bill Frye of the Stars says that with Harry Dunham pitching and Landon Wells on the receiving end his team could beat the Giants. Wells or Mowery will be tomorrow. The other players will be Pohlman, c.; Doherty 3b; Fortner, ss.; Frye, 2b; Dunham 1b; Huchins; Wernick, rf; and Rollins 1b. Townsend and Wells subs.

Crack Bowlers Clash Tonight

Tonight at 7:30 at the Selby recreation room on Gallia street the crack Irving Drew bowling team will be the opponents of the Selby All Stars. The members of the teams are the highest average bowlers of their respective leagues. The Irving Drew five will select a team from the following men: Frick, Johnson, Doherty, Gynn, Kismangle and Kelder. The Selby team will roll with P. Burtrum, H. Marple, E. Reinhard, A. Baken and T. Osier.

Cardinals Vs Waverly Sunday

A snappy practice was held last night by the Cardinals in preparation for the game Sunday afternoon at Millbrook park with the Waverly American Legion Beavers. The drill was for perfecting the signals only but a short scrimmage session will be held this afternoon at two o'clock at the old Children's Home Grounds. Coach Dodge is directing the team in an endeavor to turn in another victory over the Pike county lads.

On the end for the local team will be Wehner and Hinzler, Hodge and Cropper, tackles, Ball and Leisner, guards, Engitt, center, Reinhardt will be at the quarterback position, Sweet

A Kodak picture is the best way to remember your friends and outings. Genuine Kodak films can be had at Fowlers but you must buy them on Saturdays if you want to Kodak Sunday.

Tanks Say They Are Ready For Whistle

(Irononian)
Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock the Tanks trotted out on Beechwood lot and underwent a stiff practice which will probably be the last hard preparation indulged in before they prepare the Portsmouth squad tomorrow afternoon. The team from all appearances was in fine shape and the new players were worked to perfection. The backfield looks better than it has so far this season and as the River City Squad has based its hopes on this imagined defect they will be sorely disappointed after the first few minutes of play tomorrow. The team is full of just the right spirit—not too confident of victory and not afraid of losing—and are determined to duplicate the drubbing they administered Portsmouth last season. From all indications both teams will realize they have been through a real football game at the end as the rivalry is exceedingly high, especially after the propaganda drifting up this way from the Blue City.

Nick McMahon, old timer, looks good age will probably break into the game. Otherwise the team will start with about the same personnel and line-up as that of last Sunday. Big Bill Brooks will be there as usual and will have a lively time if any of the dope going around is true. Portsmouth claims they have his match, but that is yet to be proven. One thing certain, they had to go out of the city for a man to come any way near the big tackle, and his dollars to doughnuts they'll realize their misleading vision in tomorrow's battle.

Big Football Games In East Today

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Football in the east today gave promise of a riot of color and a sharp clash of sectional athletic interests.

From Kentucky came Centre with the great "bo" McMillen and other "praying colons" to do battle against Harvard at Cambridge. From Atlanta rolled northward the "golden tornado" of Georgia tech, to line up at the pole grounds against the fast Penn state team. The University of Virginia eleven was at Princeton for a clash with the Tiger squad.

There were other clashes of no less importance between rival eastern aggregations, Ithaca, the undefeated Cornell team, faced the undefeated Dartmouth combination. At Philadelphia, Pittsburgh was scheduled to oppose Pennsylvania while at New Haven, Yale and Brown were ready for their annual tilt.

P. H. S. LOSES TO CIRCLEVILLE

The Portsmouth high school eleven lost by a score of 19 to 7 at Circleville Friday afternoon, the local's loss failing to halt the Circleville backfield who hit the line repeatedly for big gains. The Pickaway county eleven showed splendid interference on end runs and also made big gains this way. The locals scored a second touchdown which was not allowed by the referee. The ball was sent over following one of the fake plays pulled on P. H. S. by New Boston. One of the backs on the local eleven needed as if he was taken suddenly ill and while most of P. H. S. and Circleville were directing their attention to the "sick" man the ball was snatched into play and one of the local backs carried it for a touchdown. The referee refused to allow the play but could not give any excuse as to why he would not.

Captain Cressy of the locals played a fine game but could not do all the work, the line failing to hold the Circleville players when the locals put the ball into play and when Circleville backs hit the line.

Says Local Team Will Rely On Aerial Game

The Ironton Register yesterday said: "Almost complete dependence will be placed in aerial and open field work by the Portsmouth Smoke House team next Sunday afternoon when they face the Ironton Tanks on the Beechwood gridiron, according to advices brought to this city by local men who are employed in the River City."

"Especially heavy work was engaged in this afternoon by the Ironton coach and trainer to perfect an almost impregnable defense against the overhead attempts of the visitors to break through to the Ironton goal in the early portions of the game. The Tanks are prepared to hop right in and break up all the offerings of their down-river rivals in the early periods and then crush their attempts to place the line of the Tanks."

"A strong workout was on the cards for the Tanks this afternoon at Beechwood and there will be a light training period Saturday evening. There are three Williamses on the Portsmouth club, all of them fast, and exceedingly heavy players. They have worked out a forward pass combination that is difficult to solve, but the Tanks believe they have mastered the defense and will be able to prevent any effort of the combination to function."

Conference Teams Clash

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—Three of the four unbeaten teams of the Western conference play today, while Ohio State rests for her game with the University of Chicago next Saturday.

The battle between Minnesota and Wisconsin at Madison, Wisconsin, was the most interesting conference game as regards bearing on the conference title, while Chicago, another member of the "unbeaten four," followed her Princeton victory last Saturday with another inter-sectional clash, this time with the University of Colorado.

The Selby Leaders lived up to their name, last night, and the Bankers dropped to fourth place, when the former took three straight from them by the scores of 21-5, 21-13, and 21-15. The Selby team put up a splendid game. For the first two games, their team work was as nearly perfect as team work could be. Debo, with his left hand work, had the other side constantly guessing, while "Petey Dink" with his "Griffin" serve did wonders and Ladd made an eleven point serve. Altogether the Bankers were up against a mighty stiff proposition, and though McNamara and Erfurth played splendid games, they couldn't win for their team. The Lineups: Selby Leaders, H. C. Stevenson, Capt., C. Davis, C. Debo, L. Ladd, H. Peters and H. Stewart.

Bankers, Robt. McNamara, Capt. A. Whit, Ray Erfurth, A. Kugelman, J. Bruning.

3:00 p. m. Trinity Vets vs Selby Vets.

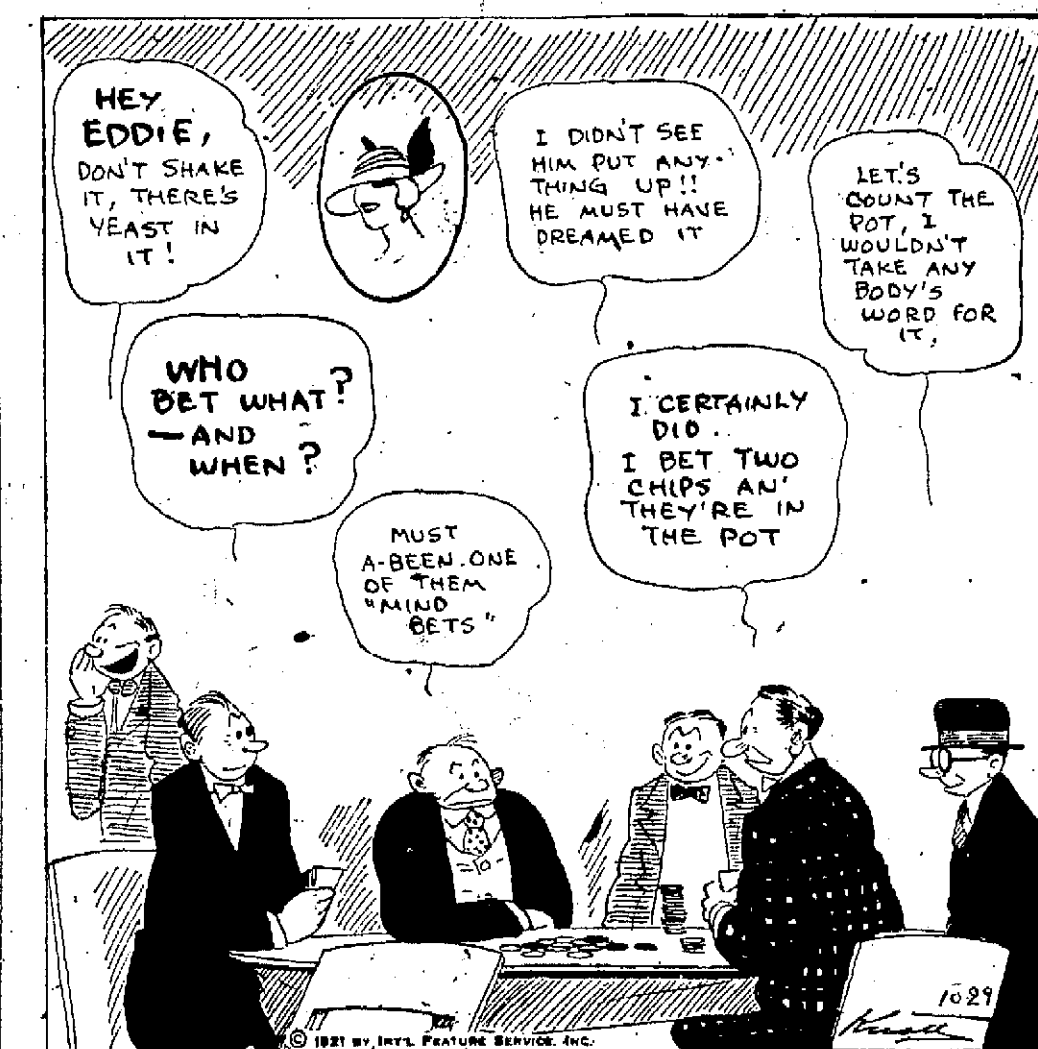

The Phil Isl and the Selects fought it out at the Parish Hall, last night, and it was "some" contest. Both teams were playing on a strange floor, and the Phil Isl got used to it the first, coping the first two games 21-18 and 21-15 due largely to the work of Rae Selby and Jim Breese. By the time they had reached the third game the Selects had gotten used to the floor, and took it 21-15. Breese, was as usual the big prop of his team, killing the ball with great force, and he was ably backed by Kendall and Doll.

Phil Isl: Rae Selby, Capt., J. Breese, Forrest Williams, Graves Williams, Russell McCurdy and Wm. Harris.

Selects: Jiglus Baesman, Capt. Al Kendall, A. Doll, M. Ruggles, R. Bryant.

Meanwhile at the Wilhelmette Hall, the Bigelows were losing 2 out of 3 to the Cubs, 21-7, 21-14 and 20-21. The last game was a terrific battle. The Bigelows passed the ball to Ruggles, who kept killing it continually. The

PENNY ANTE

Bigelows got the score to 20-14 in their favor, but kept losing the ball on "game ball," till the Cubs got up to 20-19. Then the Cubs lost the ball on a close decision and the Bigelows put over the winning point, bringing the struggle to a close.

Selby Cubs: N. G. Griffin, Capt., Fred Lorry, Roger Selby, Eddie Hook, Otis Post and Cleve Freeman.

Bigelow: Ches. Higgins, Capt. Ora Ricker, L. E. Butler, Earl Hardin, John Underwood and Chris. Heer.

English Champ
Is Defeated

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Eralc Rice, English lightweight champion, was defeated by Saloe Friedman, Chicago, when the former's seconds tossed a towel into the ring in the seventh of a 15 round bout here last night.

Play Greenup

While the Smoke House team is battling with the Ironton Tanks at Ironton Sunday, the Smoke House Juniors will be playing with the Greenup Owls at Greenup. The team will leave this city at 10:30 by automobile, the game to begin at 2:30. The Juniors held a first signal drill last night and feel that they are in good condition for the game.

The following players will make the trip: Montgomery, Lavender, Dixon, Blair, Gould, C. Clevenger, Hewitt, Gee, R. Smith, H. Adams, Schreck, Rush and T. Clevenger.

Twenty Four Years Ago

Capt. L. T. Beatty celebrated his 68th birthday anniversary.

H. S. Grimes bought the old Davis flour mill at Union Mills for $1,005 and arranged to move it to Leesville to manufacture brewers' grain.

H. H. Shaw and Nick Gilgen went out on a hunting trip.

Frank Matthews and Miss Etta J. Lodwick stole a march on their friends by quietly slipping off to Ironton and getting married. Frank had a couple of boxes of cigars under his arm when he returned to work at the Drew, Selby & company factory and he passed out the "smokes" to the boys with the brief remark, "On my marriage."

Hen T. F. Chapman, editor of the Gallipolis Journal, newly elected representative from Gallia county was in the city.

Charles C. Wilhelm arranged to open a music store in the Kendall block.

William Valenmore, a prominent Pike county farmer, died at his home near Wakefield, aged 84. He was quite wealthy, leaving personal property valued at $200,000, in addition to about 2,000 acres of Scioto bottom land. He was a queer character and lived like a man without a dollar in the world.

As Win Nye was strolling down Fourth street in the bright moonlight, he chanced upon a small "possum" that was gamboling about on the sidewalk. Nye's appetite was aroused and he made a vicious dive at the animal that scared it out of a year's growth, for it gave up the ghost for the time being, and was as weak and bumble as a little lamb. Nye carried his prize in triumph to his drugstore and prepared a retreat for it in a deer barrel. With the poor little "possum" stowed away, Nye with ghastly glee, carefully arranged for a swell supper with the "possum" as the honored guest.

The Wreckers won two after losing the first to the Ringers by four pins. Scott was on top with 456.

JUST PLAIN JOHN SMITH

John Smith—yes just plain John Smith—we are going to print a little story next week about John Smith and what happened to him when the Moulton-Matthews-Harper-J. Earl Chandler gang got out their tomahawks.

AGAIN DISCUSSING MR. MATTHEWS

REVERTING again to the frantic plea of Hon. George E. Matthews and the Morning Sun for all republicans to rally round the ticket as a sacred party obligation, we wish to reiterate the statement that there has been nothing in Mr. Matthews' political career that entitles him to republican support purely upon party grounds. To Mr. Matthews the republican party has been and is simply a vehicle for his own advancement and aggrandizement. When he could do so he rode in the front seat of the band wagon. When somebody else wanted the choice seat, Mr. Matthews took to the bushes and began to throw bricks, ripe tomatoes or anything else handy.

Do you doubt this Mr. Republican voter? If you do, just listen to these distinguished witnesses from your own party.

First—Hon. Charles E. Hard, confidential secretary to President Warren G. Harding. Mr. Hard was editor of the Portsmouth Daily Blade, republican organ for many years. In 1901 Mr. Hard was chairman of the republican city committee and under his leadership, the republican party was victorious. They did not enjoy much of the fruits of victory because of a combination entered into by Mr. George E. Matthews, one of the men elected on the republican ticket and democratic leaders by which Mr. Matthews secured the presidency of council for himself and the democrats secured about everything else of value from a political standpoint. Mr. Hard, in flaming headlines, denounced Mr. Matthews, as follows: "Matthews Bolts the Party Which Elected Him To Council—Receives the Presidency As A Result—City In The Hands of Matthews Democratic Combine."

Furthermore Mr. Hard filled the Blade for days with editorials denouncing Mr. Matthews and reading him out of the republican party. Thus Hard closed one editorial by saying: "Mr. Matthews has done better for HIMSELF, but what has he done for his party?"

But here is another witness—his name is George M. Osborn. Mr. Osborn is now as 20 years ago, a candidate on the same ticket with Mr. Matthews, and we note that NOW Mr. Matthews is loudly praising him and his valuable services to the city. But 20 years ago Mr. Osborn was the republican caucus nominee for president of the city council, a caucus in which, by the way, Mr. George E. Matthews participated actively and to whose conclusions he agreed. When the formal voting came at the regular meeting of council, Mr. Matthews joined with his democratic colleagues in having himself elected president of council and George M. Osborn was sent into the discard. In a subsequent issue of the Portsmouth Blade we find a column interview with Mr. Osborn in which he denounced Mr. Matthews and characterized his bolt as inexcusable and unwarranted!

More witnesses—Now come the entire republican membership of that council, Harry W. Miller, George M. Osborn, George Berthold, William J. Gims, Edw. Poffenberger, Joseph W. Bratt and Henry Widdelbrook and issue a two column statement in which they scold Matthews violently as a party traitor and tell how they tried in every possible way to keep him "regular."

In view of these facts, why should any republican voter feel under party obligation to support Mr. Matthews? And in view of Mr. Matthews' past record of reckless promise and sleek performance, can any sensible voter place faith in his profuse vote catching promises to do this and that if he is given another office?

We ask the voters of Portsmouth to ponder over these things and to remember that Mayor William N. Gableman and his able assistants have given the city of Portsmouth a sound, sensible and efficient administration. They have actually handled city affairs like the managers of any private corporation would handle its affairs. They understand city business. They have brought order out of chaos. They are fast getting city finances on a sound basis and they are spending more than the people are giving them, but they are not spending more than the people are giving them, to spend. If Mayor Gableman is re-elected he will carry on the good work, so well started, and by the end of his second term Portsmouth will stand out as the model city from governmental as well as other standpoints.

There is every reason why Mayor Gableman should be re-elected and The Times has faith in the sound sense and good judgment of the men and women of Portsmouth to believe they will make his majority a most impressive one.

ONE MORE SETBACK

JUST what effect the resignation of the Wirth ministry in Germany will have on the disordered state of Europe generally it is for no one to say, but that it is unfortunate and to be regretted is not to be denied.

The Wirth ministry did more than any other one agency, since the armistice, to placate Europe to allay the consuming passions of war, it convinced the world at large that Germany was going to make an honest and earnest effort to discharge the awful burden piled upon her by indemnities imposed.

She herself is again thrown into chaos by the resignation of the ministry and in the confusion certain to ensue much of the ground gained by the lessening enmity towards her will be lost.

It is stated that the price of Thanksgiving turkeys will be normal. Normally high, we presume.

Silesians are warned to keep calm. That advice might be applied also to the rest of Europe.

A Chicago couple got married for a joke. That will go over a lot of married people's heads.

Notwithstanding it is a dry subject prohibition produces a lot of talk.

POLLY AND HER PALS

New-York-Day-By-Day

BY O. O. MONTY

NEW-YORK, October 29.—The Roaring Forties hears that Arnold Rothstein has quit. He has turned from the gaming tables forever to settle down in an inconspicuous but comfortable niche and surrender himself to peace and quiet. Not since the days of Dick Caneblond has New York known such a plunger. He would gamble high on anything and the gamblers said he was "square."

Not long ago he is reported to have stood without batting an eye while he dropped $102,000 to "Nick the Greek," a new plunger who came out of the west quoting Socrates and Plato, Rothstein neither smiled nor winced. It was the luck of the game—and he is a confirmed fatalist.

He is pale, well built Hebrew in his mid-thirties. Polished, suave, he dresses more like the conservative merchant than the man who will stake a fortune on the flip of a card. He has friends who are powerful. I have seen him at Broadway cafes dining with men whose names are known everywhere.

He is said to be quitting with several millions. Most of the big plungers shoot upward with the mighty rush of a Roman candle—and are seen no more. Coal Oil Johnny died in poverty. Bald Jack Rose, hairless, slim and amiable, is now exhorting at the mourners' bench. He lives in a colorless Tenth Avenue rooming house. He used to have a choice suite at old Rector's.

Most of the big New York gamblers come from the East Side, stuss joints. As boys the gambling germ gets them. Their winnings go for flashy clothes, installment diamonds and they crave classification in the steadily Broadstreet of aliases—to be known as "The Gambling Kid," "Phingling Joe" and the like.

They are reared in a land of sidewalk, garbage cans and perpetual washing, yet when they fight their way to Broadway's glitter they have become oddly urbane and are as much at home in a dinner jacket at a smart dining place as the noblest of the bluebloods.

The other day "Monte Carlo Dan" Grent to the dark shadows of Blackwell's Island. His fox-like face was lean from hunger. He twitched from drugs and when he coughed a suspicious pink foam came to his lips. At 34 he was all in. Yet seven years ago he bought out a restaurant just for the night—and the next day gave it back to the owners.

An enterprising restaurateur is doing a flourishing business among stevedockers and young clerks in the shopping district. He furnishes box lunches by special delivery at any time designated. The orders are taken from a menu which he presents the day before. The charge is 30 cents a lunch. It is not a big lunch but it is tempting and well prepared.

There is a snappy haberdasher shop not far from my lunch on Madison avenue. It has only one window. Nightly it is trimmed for the next day with gay scarves, gloves, highly polished walking sticks and the latest thing in collars. The rental is high and the place is small. Yet the proprietor has his own home in the East Eighties right off Park avenue. He sports a huge car with a chauffeur sitting out in the rain and belongs to many clubs. The one widow does the trick, he told me. "All my sales are based on what is in that window. I used to have two windows but it scattered the interest—they concentrate where there is only one window," he said.

It would be difficult to recognize the Astor these days. The entire front and two sides have been given over to a row of little Paris like shops—perfumers, ticket brokers, haters, confectioners, druggists, caterers, gown and millinery shops. Even Louis Mann and his trick collar have changed to the other side of the street.

Queer Things in This Lively Old World

A miracle is the work of a great power that causes wonder, employed as a sign. It is always supernatural, but is not necessarily contrary to the laws of nature. So there are miracles and miracles. Twenty-five of them said to have occurred at Lourdes this season, visited by 600,000 people. A thousand miracles in the form of cures are claimed for the famous spring in the grotto of Lourdes since it first attracted attention in 1858. In Vienna and the entire portion of Europe there are said now to be ten women to one man. Necessarily there is a great scarcity of husbands—so general indeed that the mothers and brothers of daughters are advertising for husbands for them and offering premiums of from 40,000 to 100,000 Austrian crowns for eligible and desirable mates. These advertisements occupy as many as five columns in the newspapers, the London Mail says.

Lord Frederick in India has been getting unusual flavors at elaborate dinners at native royal tables. He has had snipe cooked in sweetened and chocolate dressed with asafetida, neither of which appeared to his unaccustomed palate. He also "met up with" a cocktail made of Barbados Green Bitters. It was most comforting and seemingly quite innocuous he says but was "under the skin" apparently felt polluted by it. Later in Ceylon he saw the famous mus tree, popularly supposed to emit deadly fumes; but the curator of the botanical garden in which it stands said under it for three hours without any evil effects. It may have been a day when the tree was not fuming.

We All Sit in This Game

Writing from Topeka, an eastern newspaper man quotes some lines by Eugene F. Ware, the famous "Iron-Quill" newspaper poet of thirty-odd years ago, author of the agnostic "Washer-woman's Song" and many other clever and ratcheting verses. His "Whisk," originally written "Poker," but changed in title to please his wife because poker was in disrepute with her runs as follows:

Hour after hour the hands were fairly shuffled, And fairly dealt, but still I go no hand. The morning came, and with a mind untrifled I only said, "I do not understand. Life is a game of whist. From unseen forces The cards are shuffled and the hands are dealt; Blind are our efforts to control the game."

That, though unseen, are no less strongly felt. And yet I like the game and want to play. And through the long, long night will I murmur, "Whist."

IF YOU ARE WELL-BRED

You will, unless a widow, have your cards engraved with your husband's initials or name. A widow correctly uses her maiden name as Mrs. Elizabeth Craig Brown. This distinguishes the widow from the matron whose husband is living.

You will have cards engraved bearing the name of yourself and your daughter who is doing her first season socially. A young girl, just out, rarely carries her own cards, for her mother is supposed to make most of her calls with her. Even though she occasionally calls alone she uses the same card, always running a pencil line through her mother's name.

You will not, in making a business call on a man, read in your card. A woman under such circumstances merely gives her name to the secretary or attendant.

THE MAN WHO FAILS

The man who fails is the sort of a chap who is always looking around for a snap. Who neglects his work to regard the clock. Who never misses a chance to knock. He is grouchy and slow when work begins. When its time to quit he jokes and grins. He's always busy as busy can be. When he thinks the boss is around to see. He believes that a pull is the only way by which he can ever draw bigger pay. And he sulks and growls when he sees his plan upset by the "PUSH" of another man. He's on the job when he draws his pay. That done, he soldiers his time away. While the men who tackle their jobs with vim Keep pushing and climbing ahead of him. For the man who fails has himself to blame. If he wastes his chances and misses his aim He'd win if he'd use his hands and wits. THE MAN WHO FAILS IS THE MAN WHO QUILTS. —By Chas. R. Barrett, Exchange.

THE BEST AVAILABLE

The new servant had presented her references, and the lady of the house read them over with a doubtful eye. "I'm not quite satisfied with these," Bridget, she said. "Neither am I, mum," returned Bridget angrily, "but they're the best the old fool would give me."

Precisely

A police regulation posted up in Ireland reads as follows: "Until further notice every vehicle must carry a light when darkness begins. Darkness begins when the lights are lit."

Railcans Coming

A Southerner and a Northerner were discussing the remoteness of certain backwoods districts in their respective sections. "Why," said the Northerner, "there are towns in the Derksbires that don't know to this day how the battle of Manila Bay came out."

"That's nothing," countered the Southerner, "there are hill regions down my way where they don't know the Revolution is over."

"Hm," mused the Northerner. "Then there'll surely be something doing when the rye word that the Civil War is on."

In His Own Time

An old Scotchman, David Gordon, was seriously ill, with scant hope for recovery. He had been wheeled into making a will by relatives, and these were now gathered about his bedside watching him laboriously sign it. He got as far as D-A-V-I—then fell back exhausted.

"D. Uncle David, D." exhorted a nephew. "Dec" ejaculated the old Scot feebly, but with indignation. "I'll do when I'm ready, ye avaricious wretch!"

The Only Resource

The class in chemistry was wrestling with a tough problem. "Suppose," supposed the professor, "you were called upon to attend a patient who had swallowed a heavy dose of oxalic acid—what would you administer?"

There was silence for a few moments and then a voice spoke up: "The sacrament."

The Long and Short of it

"A speech," a well known lecturer says, "should be like a woman's street dress—long enough to cover the subject, but short enough to be interesting."

Notes and Notes

"That tenor of ours has a marvelous voice. He can hold one of his notes for half a minute."

"That's nothing!" I have held one of his notes for two years."

Now A-days

Before the age of this and that One asked: "My dear, who made your hat?" That's now old stuff for flapper fair—She asks instead, "Who cuts your hair?"

Ambiguity

"But what," asked the coroner, "is the mystery about the dead man's identity. Cards and letters were found in the pockets, were they not?" "That's what makes it so confusing," replied the clever detective. "The initials were the same as those upon the umbrella he carried."

THE MAN WHO FAILS

The man who fails is the sort of a chap who is always looking around for a snap. Who neglects his work to regard the clock. Who never misses a chance to knock. He is grouchy and slow when work begins. When its time to quit he jokes and grins. He's always busy as busy can be. When he thinks the boss is around to see. He believes that a pull is the only way by which he can ever draw bigger pay. And he sulks and growls when he sees his plan upset by the "PUSH" of another man. He's on the job when he draws his pay. That done, he soldiers his time away. While the men who tackle their jobs with vim Keep pushing and climbing ahead of him. For the man who fails has himself to blame. If he wastes his chances and misses his aim He'd win if he'd use his hands and wits. THE MAN WHO FAILS IS THE MAN WHO QUILTS. —By Chas. R. Barrett, Exchange.

A police regulation posted up in Ireland reads as follows: "Until further notice every vehicle must carry a light when darkness begins. Darkness begins when the lights are lit."

Railcans Coming

A Southerner and a Northerner were discussing the remoteness of certain backwoods districts in their respective sections. "Why," said the Northerner, "there are towns in the Derksbires that don't know to this day how the battle of Manila Bay came out."

"That's nothing," countered the Southerner, "there are hill regions down my way where they don't know the Revolution is over."

"Hm," mused the Northerner. "Then there'll surely be something doing when the rye word that the Civil War is on."

In His Own Time

An old Scotchman, David Gordon, was seriously ill, with scant hope for recovery. He had been wheeled into making a will by relatives, and these were now gathered about his bedside watching him laboriously sign it. He got as far as D-A-V-I—then fell back exhausted.

"D. Uncle David, D." exhorted a nephew. "Dec" ejaculated the old Scot feebly, but with indignation. "I'll do when I'm ready, ye avaricious wretch!"
